Dear Chris,

Congratulations on being named America's Best Builder for 2012. You now share a great honor with a select group of the nation's foremost home builders. BUILDER handed out the very first America's Best Builder award in 1992, and past winners include some of the finest home building companies in the country.

Winning this year should make the award even more special for you. Though the housing industry as a whole has suffered terrible losses, the America's Best Builder program drew a strong field of candidates, of which Pinnacle Mountain Homes was determined to be the best in its class.

Senior editor John Caulfield will reach out to you shortly to set up interviews with key members of the company. The story in BUILDER announcing the year's winners will appear in the March 2012 issue.

Again, congratulations on winning this prestigious award, and best of luck as we head into 2012.

Sincerely,

Denise Dersin
Editor in Chief
